MANY PRECEDENTS FOR GILMAN-COREY MATING

Coming Wedding Is Only Another Example
Of Allurement That Stage Queens
Have For Parvenues.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
New York, May 11.—The fable of the footlight favorite and the foolish millionaire is the staple of gossip on Broadway these days. "Mocking Bird" Mabelle Gilman is the envy of all the "tenderloin bunch," as Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw would put it, while William Ellis Corey—but what's the use of saying it.
Another chapter is to be added to this never-ending romance next week when, according to announcement, the millionaire president of the United States Steel Corporation will make Miss Gilman his bride. What will the outcome be?
There are lots of precedents for the Gilman-Corey affair. In fact, it seems to be a favorite trick of men of millions to put away the wives of their poorer days when wealth opens the way to acquaintance with footlight queens.
William B. Leeds, the "tin plate king," had a wife in his little home in Richmond, Ind., long before he became a millionaire. She was a sweet, home-loving woman, who aided him to become rich. Then he met Mrs. Nanette Stewart Worthington, who was the wife of George E. Worthington of Cleveland. The couple had drifted apart and Mrs. Worthington listened willingly when Leeds suggested that she divorce him. This accomplished, the "tin plate king" found an excuse to put aside his own wife and then married Mrs. Worthington.
In Paris Antonio Terry met the beautiful Sibyl Sanderson, a grand opera singer, born in California, who made her reputation in France. Four years of litigation ensued before Terry succeeded in getting his freedom. Then he married Miss Sanderson. He died shortly after, and his widow only survived him a short time.
Henry M. Flagler, one of the richest men in the United States, forced a complaisant Florida legislature to pass a law making insanity grounds for divorce. With this for an excuse, he put aside his wife and married a woman thirty-six years his junior. The former Mrs. Flagler is well provided for financially, lives in a handsome home on Riverside Drive, and Broad way thinks she got the better of the bargain.
"Alonzo Wood," a Pittsburg steel magnate and two times widower, married Goldie Mohr, a singer in the Weber and Fields' company. He died shortly after and his widow inherited the bulk of his millions. And Broadway thinks Goldie was "the wise one."
The case of Harry Thaw might be cited, but after all it would be hardly

REIGNING BELLE OF THE EARLY FORTIES IS BLIND

Daughter Of President Tyler Is Ending Notable Career In The Louise Home
At Washington.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Washington, D. C., May 11.—A happy Virginia bride at nineteen, mistress of the White House at twenty-one and totally blind and an inmate of the Louise Home in this city at eighty-seven. Such is the life story of Mrs. Letitia Tyler Semple, daughter of former President Tyler, who was eighty-seven years old today.
When it is remembered that Mrs. Semple was a little girl when Lafayette made his last visit to America, and a young woman before the Seminole Indians were finally pacified in Florida, it would seem that she almost belongs to another age. She saw the first telegraph wire in the United States stretched from Washington to Baltimore, and later was given a piece of the original Atlantic cable by S. F. B. Morse himself. She was present at the launching of the Allegheny, the first iron ship in the United States navy to be propelled by steam. She was acquainted with such notable figures in public life as Daniel Webster, John C. Calhoun, Henry Clay, Washington Irving, Andrew Jackson, John Quincy Adams and numerous others.
Mrs. Semple in her youth was her father's constant companion. She was a good musician and was the life and spirit of his household. At the age of nineteen she became the wife of Mr. Semple.
When the death of William Henry Harrison made Tyler president, he brought a large and interesting family to the White House. Mrs. Tyler was an invalid and could never dis-

ANOTHER FIRE THAT WAS AN INCENDIARY

Peter Ellingson's Barn in Edgerton Burned Last Evening Under Mysterious Circumstances.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Edgerton, May 11.—Last evening at 10:30 the large steel covered barn belonging to Peter Ellingson caught fire in a mysterious manner in the hay mow and was destroyed. The horses and some of the contents were saved, but the loss will be heavy. From the location of the fire there seems but little doubt the conflagration was of incendiary origin and an investigation will be made of all circumstances relative to it.

TODAY SEES WHEAT RISE STILL HIGHER

Soaring Started by Government Crop
Report Continues—Weather Reports Also Affect Quotations.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Chicago, May 11.—The violent upturn in wheat which followed the publication yesterday of the government crop report continued today. Within an hour after the opening prices had advanced 2 1/2 and 2 1/2 above yesterday's close. The continued cold weather in the west and northwest and discouraging reports from Michigan and Kansas and news from Winnipeg to the effect that seeding in that section is temporarily stopped, were bullish factors, realizing sales that caused a recession at times, but the market soon strengthened, July selling at 93 1/2.
New York, May 11.—This morning the bulls made an enthusiastic effort to get dollar wheat. They lifted July to 93 1/2 but encountered heavy selling for profits. This price represents an advance of 5 to 6 cents per bushel since the crop report yesterday.

A FORMER TYPO SAVED JOHNSON

WORKED IN GAZETTE OFFICE IN THE FIFTIES.

WAS SENATOR FROM KANSAS

Refused to Vote for Impeachment of the President—Died in Poverty Recently.

With the death of Edmund J. Ross, former United States senator from Kansas and the man who cast the deciding vote in the impeachment proceedings against President Johnson in the days following the civil war, comes a letter from Charles Holt, former owner and editor of the Janesville Gazette, in which he gives the interesting bit of information that in the fifties Ross was a typesetter in the Gazette.

Mr. Holt's Letter
 Mr. Holt, who is now at an advanced age, keeps close touch of Janesville matters and is one of the owners and editors of the Kankakee Gazette of Kankakee, Illinois. He writes as follows:

"Dear Gazette: Edmund G. Ross, who saved Andy Johnson from conviction under the impeachment proceedings against him, and who died recently, was a compositor in the Gazette office before he went to Kansas during the free state fight. His father lived near Emerald Grove.

His Election
 "W. C. Pomeroy was 'Boss' of Kansas when Ross was elected United States Senator and he was regarded as a Pomeroy man. At the time he worked in the Gazette office, Alden and Holt were publishers, if some person had been told that the office would furnish a United States Senator, there were two or three others who would have been picked out soon as Ross."

Stood Firm
 "Ross went from Janesville to Kansas during the days it was referred to as 'Bleeding Kansas.' He stood with the anti-slavery party and was editor of a paper that did much good in the ante bellum days. When war was declared he shouldered a musket with a Kansas regiment and went off to the war. He was promoted for bravery to the rank of Major, and when the fighting was over he resumed the pen only to be appointed United States Senator. He succeeded Senator Lane, who had killed himself over the disgrace of being called 'A Johnson Don.' This was at the time of the first talk of impeachment of the President.

Vote Important
 "Ross filed this term out and was then elected for another full term.
 Meanwhile the impeachment proceedings had become vital and a two thirds vote of the senate was necessary to make it de facto. The people of Kansas wired Ross to vote for the impeachment and he replied he was a judge and would be guided by the evidence, not by the wish of the people of Kansas. When the important day came Ross voted against impeachment and by his vote saved the nation from what is now conceded to have been a lasting disgrace.

Threatened
 "Kansas people were furious. They wired him to resign; telegraphed him that Lane's revolver was still in existence and threatened him with violence if he ever returned to the state.
 The man who had set his types in the Gazette office stood firm. He finished his term out in the Senate, returned to Kansas, drove through Popoka in an open carriage in defiance to his enemies and then removed to New Mexico, a poor, broken, disgraced man.

Back to Case
 "He went back to the 'case' and worked in silence and oblivion until Cleveland became President. Then he was appointed Governor of New Mexico, which office he filled until his term was over, with care and diligence. His term over he returned to the case again and died last Wednesday at Albuquerque, N. M. Ross really saved the Union from a lasting disgrace, and his life after his political retirement was one that commanded respect from all parties. Doubtless there are some citizens of Janesville who may remember him when he worked here over a half century ago."

WISCONSIN WEATHER FORECAST

Warmer tonight and rain Sunday.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT

"The man who wins is the man who works—

The man who toils while the next man shirks—

The man who stands in his deep distress—

With his head held high in the deadly press—

Yes, he is the man who wins.

"The man who wins is the man who knows

The value of pain and the worth of woes—

Who a lesson learns from the man who fails—

And a moral finds in his mournful wails—

Yes, he is the man who wins."

This choice scrap of practical sentiment, from the Baltimore News, defines the man who is wanted today, in every department of life.

There are two classes of workers in the world. One performs as little as they can, in a given length of time, with no interest invested in the work; the other, so absorbed, that time passes so rapidly that the days are too short for accomplishment.

From this latter class come all the winners in the race, and the surprising thing about it is, that this fact is never recognized by the other class.

The men who today are clamoring for the equal distribution of property, and the larger class who are envious of wealth, are not the men who are found in the ranks of cheerful willing workers.

The city of San Francisco is in the hands of a mob, not because there is a demand for bread, but because organized labor, not content with wages and short hours that are paralyzing to many industries, is envious of capital and demands a more liberal distribution.

If this can not be secured peacefully it must be had by the right of lawless might, and no man is permitted to work, however willing, who is not in sympathy with this law-breaking movement.

There are some lessons which this class of workers are slow to learn, and one of them is, their utter incompetency to manage and conduct business of any magnitude.

The employees in a small factory, in an eastern state, became dissatisfied, two years ago, and struck for higher wages.

The owner had a conference with them and told them frankly that he could not afford to meet their demands, and then suggested that they buy him out. A stock company was organized with thirty-three shareholders, and the plant put in operation at the advanced scale of wages.

In less than a year thirty of the stockholders had retired, and the other three persuaded the old management to take what was left of the business.

While organized labor is strong enough in many labor centers, to dictate wages, it is as weak as a child when it comes to management and employment, because the ranks are destitute of winners in the great arena where destinies are won.

It is well for humanity that only a fragment of the world's workers are found in the ranks of organized labor, and that in the larger field the prevailing sentiment is, not only willingness, but an earnest desire to perform faithfully and well.

Every home, worthy of the name, enjoys the wholesome influence of the wife and mother, who works untiringly from early morning until the little cherubs are stowed away for the night, and then the busy fingers find employment in the work basket.

The thought of the long day, with its monotonous round of toil, is last in the lullaby of a heart full of love and devotion to the little home over which she presides, and there is no suggestion of servitude or drudgery.

The eight-hour day is a problem which fails to interest or annoy, for "she works from sun to sun, and then her work is never done," but there is neither complaint nor jealousy, and she would not change her lot if she could.

These wives and mothers form a substantial part in the hive of the world's great industries, and yet they are frequently overlooked in considering the ranks of tailors. They are not organized, but are found everywhere. On the farm, in the villages and cities, a great army of tireless uncomplaining workers, guardians of the choicest heritage bequeathed to humanity, and an inspiration to the little circle close at hand.

If the home approaches the ideal, the husband and father possesses the same spirit of loyalty and devotion. Unless handicapped by some organization, which claims his first allegiance, his home is the all-absorbing center of affection and effort.

This class of homes are the rule, and not the exception, all over America, and they are the element which gives to nation strength and character.

Of the 30 million people, which comprise the population, 20 million are school children, the other 10 million represents the people who toil, either with hand or brain, and of this great army of workers, less than five per cent belong to the class known as organized labor.

All they demand or expect is an equal chance at the opportunities of life, and to this they are so justly entitled that the privilege can not be denied them.

The man who works with a will and to a purpose, is not a hero. He is simply fulfilling the mission for which he was created.

He is in the channel, however, where heroes are found, ready to meet the requirements when occasion demands, and these demands are of frequent occurrence.

"The man who stands in his deep distress, with his head held high in the deadly press," is not a mythical character, and there are thousands of women of the same brave type.

A lady whose husband has been a great sufferer for many months, said of him, the other day, "Sometimes when he is racked with pain almost beyond endurance he will say, 'If I was only a four-year-old boy I would cry for relief.'"

Sidetracked from activity in middle life, yet heroic in suffering.

A few years ago, a lady from a neighboring state returned to her old home, ostensibly to visit, but in fact to enter a hospital for an operation to check the ravages of a malignant disease.

Her own family and most intimate friends were not advised of her plans. The tortures of mind, as well as great physical suffering, were born without a murmur, and a few months later, when she stood face to face with the grim messenger, not a murmur of complaint was heard.

The same cheerful heart that had long made the home a paradise was in control, and out of heroic suffering she passed on, a type of one of God's great noble women.

There are many unrecognized heroes and heroines, scattered up and down the common walks of life, who will never wear a Carnegie medal.

They belong to the great rank and file of humanity, seeking nothing by way of recognition, but possessing much in the imperishable coin of the realm called character. They were willing workers, in the thick of the fray, and are patient sufferers, as they wait by the wayside.

"The man who wins is the man who knows

The value of pain and the worth of woes—

Who a lesson learns from the man who fails—

And a moral finds in his mournful wails—

Yes, he is the man who wins."

CAROLINE CHURCH 1ST; ERMA SHOEMAKER 2D

Winners of League Contest Exchanged Places in Awards at District Event.

Miss Caroline Church of Whitewater was awarded first place and Miss Erma Shoemaker of Janesville second place in the annual Whitewater District declamatory contest at Whitewater last night. Both young ladies represented the Rock county league, but in the league competition here three weeks ago Miss Shoemaker won first and Miss Church second. The reversal of the decision is a disappointment to Janesville as Miss Shoemaker has twice spoken in the state interscholastic meet and this year is relegated from the race by one whom she previously defeated. Third place last evening went to Miss Nan Winch of Milton Junction, who won the Rock River Valley league contest. All three delivered the same "selections" they used in the league events. The judges last night were J. F. A. Prye, Sec. William Kittle, Prof. C. E. Pray, Ed. W. L. Smithman and Prin. Thos. W. Boyce.

Janesville sent fifty or more rosters to the meet last evening. The party went on the regular afternoon train and returned on a special just before midnight. Other cities represented were Fort Atkinson, Sharon, Deerfield, Lodi, Milton Junction and Mt. Horeb. Yesterday afternoon an oratorical contest for boys was held at Whitewater. Both Fort Atkinson and Beloit entered two contestants and Earl Karstaedt of the Line City took first and Bruce Clark of the Fort second. Arthur Karstaedt, also of Beloit, who won third in the league declamatory contest here, contested but was not given a place.

LOCAL CONTRACTORS TO DO EXCAVATING

Hayes Bros. Awarded New Freight Yards Work and Will Sub-Portions.

According to reports that are reliable but not authoritative Hayes Bros. of this city have been awarded the contract for the grading and excavating work on the Northwestern railway company's freight yards in South Janesville. It is understood that they will only do a part of the work, subletting several portions. Two other Janesville contractors bid on the work. They were Ryan, McManus & Finley and P. W. Ryan.

Contractor P. W. Ryan has just closed a contract to strip 23,000 cubic yards of material of the Atwood Sand company's pit at Beloit. Mr. Ryan will put an excavating machine upon the scene and expects to hurry the work through.

Work Near Chicago. The Janesville firm of Ryan, McManus & Finley have just been awarded a large contract on the edge of Chicago. The work is on the Chicago & Western R. R. and comprises some 200,000 yards of work, mostly earth. James Ryan, senior member of the firm, states that the work will be completed this year.

TRY WILD WEST ACT ON THE INTERURBAN

Two Youths With a Revolver Shoot Car Floor Full of Holes—Were Arrested.

Shooting the floors of interurban cars full of holes with a revolver may be fun especially when passengers are frightened but is liable to bring the participants into the clutches of the police on serious charges if practiced inside the limits of the state of Wisconsin. Arthur Prichard, who hails from Richland Center and George Miller, a Janesville youth endeavored to amuse themselves with a revolver by shooting the car floor full of holes while en route to this city from Beloit this morning. The passengers, however, failed to see the joke in the situation and became panic stricken. When the car reached the power station south of the city the two would-be western desperados were forced to leave the car and revenged themselves by firing five more shots at the car itself to show their valor. As soon as the car reached the city Sheriff Fisher and City Marshal Appleby were notified. Accompanied by Officer Brown the sheriff drove overland to the power station and Marshal Appleby went down by the next interurban car. Prichard and Miller were found at the station, disarmed and brought to the city and locked up. They will be held pending action of the interurban company. It is alleged the two men had looked upon the wine when it was red in Beloit and took this method to show their gladness of heart.

PFIEFFER ENTERED "NOT GUILTY" PLEA

Trial Was Set for Monday, May 20, and Bail Was Fixed at $500.

Robert Pfeiffer, who was arrested by Under-Sheriff Appleby at Lake Geneva yesterday on the charge of returning to the M. B. Downing Nursery Co. of Milton and collecting $2.90 commission on the same, a bogus order for goods made out in the name of R. J. Sampson of Lake Geneva, appeared before Judge Reeder in municipal court this morning. He appeared to be quite unfamiliar with court procedure and it required some time to explain to him the purpose of a preliminary examination. He entered a plea of not guilty, waived the examination, and his trial was set for Monday, May 20, at 2 p. m. Bail was fixed at $500 and the prisoner expects someone here to sign his bonds by Monday. The maximum penalty for the crime with which he is charged is a $500 fine or a year in prison.

Arbor Day Appears to Have Been Observed in Unusual Fashion by School Children Who Picked in Miltimore's Grove.

Unchaperoned by any teacher, a band of small school children are reported to have picked in Miltimore's woods yesterday. Many of them took off their shoes and stockings and went bare-foot despite the snow flurries and freezing temperatures. In passing through the grove today C. K. Miltimore counted the broken blue shells of forty birds' eggs, which seemed to indicate that the lessons of Arbor Day had not made a very deep impression on the infant minds.

ASK LEGISLATURE TO REFUND $18,000

Attorneys M. G. Jeffris and M. O. Moutat Represent Mutual Life Co. in Important Proceeding.

Attorneys M. G. Jeffris and M. O. Moutat, who were in Madison yesterday before the senate a petition to cause an act to be passed to refund $18,573.08 excess taxes, alleged to have been paid by the Mutual Life Insurance Co. of New York for premiums during the years 1901-4. The Wisconsin law provides that if any other state taxes life insurance companies organized under the laws of this state, the insurance commissioner at Madison shall cause the companies organized in the said states and doing business in Wisconsin, to pay the same percentage of the premiums on policies as shall be exacted of the Badger state concerns operating in the neighboring states. This is known as the retaliatory tax. Companies organized under Wisconsin laws were required to pay a certain tax on the basis of all premiums received for the privilege of doing business in New York state during the years 1901-4. But a recent decision of the New York court of appeals declares that the 1904 one per cent tax levied on premiums on policies made prior to Jan. 1, 1902, was not authorized by the laws of that state. Hence the Wisconsin retaliatory law did not apply and the $18,000 paid by the Mutual on premiums on policies issued prior to Jan. 1, 1902, ought not to have been paid. To refund the money will require an act of the legislature. It will first be referred to the proper committee for consideration.

Think of This When Tempted to Buy Cheaper Flour.

How much dirt would you care to eat to save a few cents?

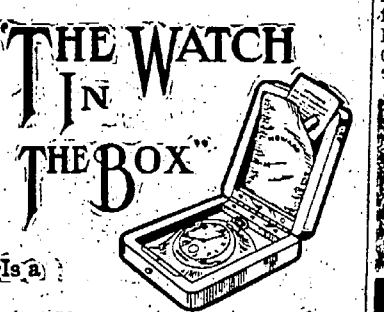

A few spoiled kernels would cheapen the cost; the flavor could hardly be detected; but the "truck" would be there just the same.

To get out every diseased wheat berry and every foul seed costs time and money—the flour is higher priced—but say, you wouldn't for the sake of a few cents punish your stomach with cockle, wild oats and stack-burned wheat, would you? Of course, not. That's why we handle EACO just for you and your friends who want only the cleanest.

Order a sack at once and see what beautiful bread you get.

LESS ANXIETY OVER THE HAYWOOD TRIAL

FEAR OF VIOLENCE IN BOISE HAS FADED AWAY.

CASE MAY NOT LAST LONG

Many of Witnesses Summoned Likely Not to Attend—Moyer Denies Having Been in Joliet Penitentiary.

Boise, Idaho, May 11.—There was noticeable evidence of relaxation in the atmosphere of Boise Friday. Notwithstanding an outward appearance of apathy and lack of interest in the case, there has existed for some time an extremely tense condition. Reports as to what might happen, either before the trial opened or during its progress have tended to create a very decided feeling of uneasiness.

The presence in the city of a number of private detectives employed by both sides and the outspoken attacks by the radical element of the Socialists, necessarily brought out many rumors and reports purporting to come from authentic sources of probable trouble, such as attack on the jail or an attempt to spirit away some of the chief witnesses for the prosecution. The proceedings in the court room Thursday did much to dissipate this. There was a spirit of give and take. A joke from one or another of counsel, or a laugh caused by the answer of a witness, acted as safety valves, and when the day was over the strain was relieved and every one breathed easier.

May Have a Jury Soon.

Mr. Richardson, one of Haywood's leading counsel, said Friday:

"We expect the sheriff will select his veniremen with fairness and with care so as to enable us to secure an impartial jury. If the right class of men are selected we will not take a long time to secure a jury."

While the number of witnesses to be called on both sides looks formidable, there is good reason to believe that a very large number of those witnesses will not be in attendance. A considerable proportion of the witnesses for the prosecution live in Colorado or in other neighboring states. This is also true of the defense, as the home of the prisoners is in Colorado and it is not possible to bring witnesses to Idaho against their will.

Lawyers of Boise not connected in any way with the case, but who know as much as is known of what both sides expect to do, say that after the jury is secured the trial of the case ought to be over in two weeks.

Moyer Denies Chicago Story.

A statement printed by a Chicago paper charging that one Charles Moyer was in 1898 sentenced to one year in Joliet penitentiary, was printed here this afternoon and created much discussion. That C. H. Moyer, the prisoner now in the jail here charged with the murder of former Gov. Steunenberg, is one and the same man is denied by the prisoner and his counsel.

Moyer when seen on the subject, said he was working in the mines in the Black Hills country of South Dakota at the time, which is given as between February 4, 1898, and January 4, 1897. He states that it would be easy to verify this by the records of the Castle Creek Gold Mining company, at Rockford, S. D., where he says he was working at the time. Moyer also said that the postmaster at Rockford will be able to testify as to his receiving mail at the time and that the officials of the county and state will verify his denial of the story that he was an inmate of the Joliet penitentiary at that time.

A MAKER OF HISTORY

By E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM.

Copyright, 1905, 1906, by LITTELL, BROWN and COMPANY.

CHAPTER XIII.

"YOU have heard now," Duncombe said finally, "the whole history of my wanderings. I feel like a man who has been beating the air, who has been at war with unseen and irresistible forces. I never seemed to have a chance. In plain words, I have failed utterly."

The two men were sitting in a room impossible of classification. It might have been a study, smoking room or gun room. The walls were adorned with stags' heads and various trophies of the chase. There were guns and rifles in plenty in a rack by the chimney-piece, a row of bookcases along the north wall, golf clubs, cricket bats and foils everywhere. A pile of logs ready for burning stood in the open grate, and magnificent rugs were spread about the floor. Nowhere was there the slightest trace of a woman's presence, for Duncombe had no sisters, and his was entirely a bachelor household.

Duncombe himself and Andrew Pelham were seated in great easy chairs in front of the open window. It was his first fine evening at home, and he was drinking in great drafts of the fresh, pure air, fragrant with the perfume of roses and great clusters of wallflowers. Pelham seemed to him like a great oven. All the time he had been half stifled, and yet he knew very well that at a word from Spencer he would have returned there at an hour's notice. He knew, too, that the home which he had loved all his days could never be quite the same place to him again.

Andrew roused himself from rather a prolonged silence.

"You were a brick to go, George," he said. "It is more than any one else in the world would have done for me."

Duncombe laughed a little uneasily. He knocked the ashes from his pipe and smiled at him.

"Andrew," he said, "I don't want to seem a fraud. I daresay that I might have gone for you alone, but I didn't."

His friend smiled faintly.

"Ah," he remarked, "I had forgotten your little infatuation. It hasn't worn off yet, then?"

"No, nor any signs of it," Duncombe answered bluntly. "It's an odd position for a matter of fact person like myself, isn't it? I tell you, Andrew, I've really tried to care for some of the girls about here. The place wants a mistress, and I'm the tenth baronet in the direct line. One's got to think about these things, you know. I've tried hard, and I've never even come near it."

"It will wear off," Andrew said. "It is a very charming little fancy, a most delightful bit of sentiment, George, but with nothing behind it it can't last."

"Perhaps not," Duncombe answered quietly. "All that I know is that it has shown no signs of wearing off up to now. It was in Paris exactly as it is here. And I know very well that if I thought it would do her the least bit of good I would start back to Paris or to the end of the world tonight."

"I must readjust my views of you, George," his friend said, with mild satire. "I always looked upon you as fair game for the Norfolk dowagers with their broods of daughters, but I never contemplated your fixing your affections upon a little piece of paste-board."

"Rot! It is the girl herself," Duncombe declared.

"But you have never seen her," Duncombe shrugged his shoulders. He said nothing. What was the use? Never seen her! Had she not found her way into every beautiful place his life had knowledge of?

"If you had," Andrew murmured. "Ah, well, the picture is like her. I remember when she was a child. She was always fascinating, always delightful to watch."

Duncombe looked out upon the gardens which he loved and sighed.

"If only Spencer would send for me to go back to Paris," he said, with a sigh.

Andrew turned his head.

"You can imagine now," he said, "what I have been suffering. The desire for action sometimes is almost maddening. I think that the man who sits and waits has the hardest task."

They were silent for some time, smoking steadily. Then Duncombe reverted once more to his wanderings.

"You remember the story they told me at the cafe, Andrew," he said. "It was a lie, of course, but was Miss Poynton anything of an artist?"

"To the best of my belief," Andrew answered, "she has never touched a brush or pencil since she left school."

Duncombe looked out into the gathering twilight.

"It is a devil's riddle, this!" he said slowly. "Why did she go to that place at all?"

"God only knows!" Andrew murmured.

Duncombe's teeth were hard set. A paper knife which he had caught up from the table snapped in his fingers. There was something in his throat which nearly choked him.

"Phyllis Poynton," Andrew continued, "was as sweet and pure a woman as ever breathed. She must have loathed that place. She could only have gone there to seek for her brother or—"

"Or for whom?"

"For those who knew where he was," Duncombe turned his head.

"Andrew?"

"Yes, old chap!"

"Let me look at her photograph again."

Andrew drew it from his pocket and passed it over. Duncombe studied it for several moments under the lamp-light.

"You are right, Andrew," he said slowly. "For her the other things would not be possible. I wonder."

His fingers clung to the photograph. He looked across at his friend. There was a slight flush in his face. He spoke nervously.

"Andrew," he said, "I'm afraid it sounds a bit brutal, but this photograph is no use to you just now. Is it, until your eyes get better. Will you lend it to me?"

"I couldn't," Andrew answered quietly. "I can't see it now, of course, but I like to feel it in my pocket, and it will be the first thing I shall look at when the doctor lets me take off these beastly glasses—if ever he does. Until then—well, I like to feel I've got it. That's all."

They both smoked furiously for several moments without looking at one another. Duncombe spoke first.

"Andrew?"

"If she comes back, shall you ever ask her to marry you?"

"I don't know, George. I'm poor, and I'm twelve years older than she is. I don't know."

There was another silence. Then the conversation drifted back once more to the one subject which was monopolizing the thoughts of both of them.

"I tell you what seems to me to be the most extraordinary part of the whole business," Duncombe said. "First, the brother disappears. Then, without a word to any one, the sister also rushes off to Paris and vanishes from the face of the earth after a series of extraordinary proceedings. One supposes naturally that if they have come to harm anywhere—if there has been a crime—there must have been a motive. What is it? You say that their banking account has been 'undiscovered'?"

"It was last week. I should hear if any checks were presented."

"And the boy's letter of credit even has never been drawn upon?"

"No; not since he left Vienna."

"Then the motive cannot be robbery. Thank heaven," Duncombe added, with a little shudder, "that it was the boy who went first."

"Don't!"

A great winged insect came buzzing into the room. Duncombe struck viciously at it with the palm of his hand.

"Lord," he muttered, "what a fool I am! I've never been away from home before, Andrew, without longing to go back, and here I am just back from Paris in August, from turning night into day, from living just the sort of life I hate, and I'd give anything to be going back there tomorrow. I'm a haunted man, Andrew. I got up last night simply because I couldn't sleep and walked down as far as the paddock. I seemed to see her face in all the shadowy corners, to see her moving toward me from among the trees. And I'm not an imaginative person, Andrew, and I've got no nerves. Look!"

He held out his hand, strong and firm and brown. It was as steady as a rock.

"I can't sleep," he continued. "I can't rest. Is there witchcraft in this thing, Andrew?"

Andrew Pelham laughed shortly. "It was a laugh which had no kinship to mirth."

BECOMING A MOTHER

Is an ordeal which all women approach with indescribable fear, for nothing compares with the pain and horror of child-birth. The thought of the suffering and danger in store for her, robs the expectant mother of all pleasant anticipations of the coming event, and casts over her a shadow of gloom which cannot be shaken off. Thousands of women have found that the use of Mother's Friend during pregnancy robs confinement of all pain and danger, and insures safety to life of mother and child. The scientific liniment is a god-send to all women at the time of their most critical trial. Not only does Mother's Friend carry women safely through the perils of child-birth, but its use gently prepares the system for the coming event, prevents "morning sickness," and other discomforts of this period. Sold by all druggists at $1.00 per bottle. Book containing valuable information free.

THE BEAUTY OF VENEZUELA.

It is of a Type all Its Own in Contrasts and Changes.

The beauty of the country is the first and most lasting impression. To catch glimpses at every turn in the valleys of cloudy peaks, or when on the mountain side to see through the limpid air valley after valley between the protecting hills, to breathe this pure air, to know that summer is almost perpetual—he is only half a man who does not for a moment forget the needs of civilization in the intoxication of primitive nature. The loveliness of Venezuela is something different from that of the Andean ranges farther west and south; it is more tropical, and the mountains do not rise to the height in which the senses are stilled by grandeur; nor is there found so near the equator that ruggedness or gloom or solemnity which is one feature of the Rockies. It is a beauty of more human type, which can be enjoyed most when we know that man has his abode there. The Andes, the Alps or the Rockies are bold and austere; they need no life; life is not meant for them; but such contrasts and changes as are constantly presented to the eye in these softened landscapes are more exquisite when man is pottering about on the surface, trying to imagine that he is of some real importance on the earth.—The Reader.

WHEN SENTENCE IS DEATH.

Various Forms of Capital Punishment the World Over.

A correspondent is desirous to know which is the most common form employed in the carrying out of the death sentence. The probability is that most people, if asked, would at once say the gallows; yet this is far from being the case.

The favorite mode appears to be the guillotine, which is employed publicly in France, Belgium, Denmark, Hanover and two cantons of Switzerland; and privately in Bavaria, Saxony and also in two cantons of Switzerland.

The cheery gallows comes next in the running and is favored publicly in Austria, Portugal and Russia; and privately in Great Britain and the United States of America.

Death by the sword obtains in 15 cantons in Switzerland; in China and Russia publicly; and in Prussia privately. Ecuador, Odenburg and Russia have adopted the musket, all publicly; while in China they have strangulation by the cord, and in Spain the garrote, both public; and in Brunswick death by the ax, and by the electric chair in New York.

In Italy there is no capital punishment.

Life.

It has also become necessary to modify the old saying "Life is what we make it." Life is what we make it in it.—Los Angeles Times.

SPECIAL LOW PRICES ON MONUMENTS

To Continue During This Month

On account of the bad weather which has prevailed during the month of April we will continue our low price reduction sale on all granites and marbles which we have in stock.

Although a great many have taken advantage of this sale, our stock is still complete and we have a great many beautiful monuments on hand and more arriving every day to select from.

During the past week we have sold six costly monuments to be placed in Janesville and neighboring cemeteries.

We have markers on hand of every description, style, size and kind of granite. We also have several sets of Corner Posts of different kinds.

All foundations under our work are built of concrete and are the best that can be laid.

The ring of the hammer and chisel is no more heard in our shop, as ALL of our lettering is done by PNEUMATIC tools. We do our cleaning up as well as our roughing out by the tools, and our lettering is the best that can be produced.

We are exclusive agents for Stewart's Iron Fences, Settees, Cemetery and Lawn Vases. All of our work is guaranteed.

Will You Come Tonight?

This Great Big Closing Sale of Jewelry Gives You a Last Chance

THE past week has seen some strenuous business. People have bought ahead from this bonanza offering and Christmas has even been anticipated by many of the wise ones who have figured the saving on articles for gifts, more than made up for the advance purchase.

THE BIG SALE

Is practically ended. Most of next week will be consumed in closing up our business. We have a great amount of engraving to do on goods purchased the past two weeks. Our collections will keep us a few days and by the time we have the balance of our stock packed for shipment it will be well into the last of the week. While the goods remain unpacked if you care to secure any of the stock at the same cost and less prices we shall be glad to wait upon you, but once they are packed we cannot accomodate you. Our sale has really exceeded our expectations and we are sure people have benefited very materially during its progress. We appreciate their hearty patronage.
